

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for collecting and associating affective information for at least one image in an imaging system includes displaying a digital image for viewing by a particular user; automatically collecting affective information for the digital image as the particular user views the image; and associating the affective information with the particular user.

2025 RELEASE UNDER E.O. 14176